Rev. Morgan Dix, D. D.—Rector of Trinity Church, N. Y.—"I greatly admire this very beautiful volume, and it forms a most interesting study for the travelled and untravelled alike."

Dr. Rainsford—Rector of St. George's, N. Y.—"My family has studied the collection of photographs illustrating a Trip around the Globe with great interest and profit. The collection is by far the best I have ever seen."

New York Herald—"The most remarkable and comprehensive volume of photographic views ever published. . . No one, whether veteran tourist or stay at home traveller can look at this handsome book without longing to own it."

New York Tribune—"An admirable collection of uncommon interest and beauty. . . With this book in hand 'arm chair travel' is really possible, and many a lonely invalid may find in it endless delight and information."

New York Times—"One not only sees in this remarkable collection the architectural wonders of the earth, but scenes in the life of remote peoples, representations of renowned sculpture and painting and celebrated natural wonders. The untravelled reader will find this work of unsurpassed value to him, while those who have journeyed into far distant lands may save themselves much cost and trouble in collecting photographs by purchasing this compact and comprehensive volume instead."

New York Sun—"Very high compliments are due the Publisher of this unique and remarkable Volume of Views. It is an education as well as a memorial, and its beauty is an independent recommendation for it. The pictures are beautifully produced, clear and soft in tone. . . They are all veritable pictures of the world as it exists to-day."

The Evening Post—"It is a handsome Volume illustrating a tour of the globe. The series of Views is well selected, an attractive book for the centre table, and contains many souvenirs for every tourist."

New York World—"Frank Hegger, the Importer of Views from all parts of the globe, has purchased a Pictorial History of the World as it exists to-day. . . Each plate is supplemented with a condensed description of the object. . . It is probably the largest and most unique collection of photographic Views ever published in one volume."

Mail and Express—"The subjects are as interesting as they are numerous and attractive. The reader is taken into the most delightful scenes, is made acquainted with the course of life in different countries, and the book is a most entertaining guide through foreign lands."

Evening Telegram—"A handsomely bound collection of views of scenes in the four quarters of the globe. The plates are all excellent, well selected, picturesque and beautiful. A mere look at the book is a temptation to buy it."

The Philadelphia North American—"In describing a foreign scene the photograph is mightier than the pen. This volume treats the eye as well as the mind to a Trip around the World. It is a guide, souvenir and entertainer of a high order and gives the 'stay at home' a fund of information that almost equals that of the wealthiest tourist."

The Philadelphia Bulletin—"It is difficult to point out the best views when all are so good. It is impossible to describe the charms of this noble volume. It is a panorama of the globe, and better for its purpose than all the books of travel ever written."

The Toronto Globe—"It is one of the most complete and admirable books ever published. It is an unending mine of interest and of information, and that it will find its way into many thousands of homes cannot be doubted."
